CAPTAIN COOK

Don Spencer/Allan Caswell

Published by MCA-Gilbey

Captain Cook, was a British sailor.
One day he left his home and sailed away.
And he sailed, and he sailed, and he sailed,
Till he came to Australia.
And he named the place he landed Botany Bay.

Captain Cook took a look and he said to his men,
"I think I'd better draw some maps
So we'll find this place again."

Captain Cook was a British sailor,
And the maps he drew are still around today.

Captain Cook sailed up the coastline.
He saw animals and plants beyond belief.
But Captain Cook didn't know the danger,
And one night he ran aground
On the Barrier Reef.

Captain Cook took a look,
And he knew that things were grim.
He said, "We'd better fix that hole
Before we have to swim!"

Captain Cook was a British sailor,
And he repaired his ship and put to sea.

Captain Cook and his ship the Endeavour,
Survived the Barrier Reef and headed home.
And he sailed, and he sailed, and he sailed,
Till he came to England.
Where he told them of the wonders that he'd known.

CAPTAIN COOK

Captain Cook took a look,
And now it's history.
Others followed after him to start a colony.

Captain Cook was a British sailor,
Without him we may not be here today.
Captain Cook was a British sailor,
Without him we may not be here today.
